

Y’ all remember Nicole from four years ago? □ That’s right, the one who cried rape. □ That Olonga po City girl who said she was gang-raped by a bunch of U. S. Marines in the back of a van.

That’s what she claimed at first. □ □ Then when questioned further, she “tearfully confessed” that she was raped by just one Marine, Lance Corporal Daniel Smith, while his three buddies watched and cheered him on.

The Marines were all drunk. □ And so was Nicole.

They picked her up from some seedy joint in the red light district of Olongapo City. There was a wild party going at that joint. The place was full of Marines, drunk Marines . . . and drunk girls, like Nicole.

After the party, Smith and his buddies invited Nicole to go bar-hopping. She went with them.

They got on a van driven by a Filipino driver . . . and from there the story got a little bit murky.

At first, Nicole said she was gang raped. She was so drunk she didn't even know if the Smith's three buddies who were with him also raped her.

Then later, she changed her story.

She said only Smith raped her, while his buddies egged him on.

Because of the nature of this incident, you know, if you would picture it this way – four huge, hulking, horny U.S. Marines forcing themselves on this dainty, helpless, virtuous, young Filipino girl – it became an international event.

And Filipinos in the Philippines and Fil-Ams here in America emitted a collected cry like that of Bonifacio's in his historic cry at the “Cry of Balintawak.”

And the cry was: “

An

Sugud, mga kapatid, ibaksak ang mga Imperialistang Amerkano !!!”

So a year later, Corporal Smith was convicted of raping Nicole. Smith’s three buddies, who merely watched and cheered him as he pumped away, were also convicted of “abetting” daw
the rape.

But instead of doing time in a Philippine prison, Smith and his buddies did their time within the confines of the luxurious U.S. Embassy in Manila. Well, what do we expect?

*Sundalo yata ng mga
Kano
yan.*

I don’t think an American soldier has ever served time in a Philippine prison for any kind of crime.

Nungka

No way, Hosay.

Let’s face it,

*tuta lang ng mga
Kano
ang mga Pilipino.*

Filipino politicians and the country's current President, Gloria Macapagal Arroyo ... what kind of credibility do they have, anyway, in the eyes of America and in the international world?

There's only one word to describe the leaders of our poor motherland:
CORRUPT. Really, everytime I see a Filipino politician on TV, I see a KUR AKUTERO
and a

But really, I am drifting away from my story.

So, moving on ... there are rumblings and mumblings and bunglings that Nicole has CHANGED her story once again. She has recanted ... and she has signed a statement by Smith's lawyers saying that she had been “so drunk that she didn't really remember what happened on that night when she was allegedly raped.”

Okey ngarud, now check this out:

Then she pocketed $2,000 that the Smith family had given her. And then with a one-way ticket in her hands, she got on a plane bound for the United States of America , where, said Nicole, she'll start her “new life.”

How she got that coveted visa to USA that quick? Hey, money talks. She was bought, that's for sure.

Ang mura naman

Two-thousand dollars

lang

But then, there was that visa to America
that every Filipino covets.

Hey, Nicole, honey, welcome to America.

HIS WIFE SAID THE SAME THING: During a congressional Budget Committee hearing a couple of weeks ago, Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, of the “Hara-kiri for AIG executives” fame, made an off-color joke about the wife of Sen. Kent Conrad, D-North Dakota.

It started after Mr. Conrad responded to a comment Senator Grassley made with, “Oh, you’re good.”

Mr. Grassley quipped back, “Well, your wife said the same thing.”

Senator Conrad responded, “Well, your wife said the same thing, too, about me.”

They both chuckled at their own remarks. Parehong pendeho siguro itong dalawang ‘to . . .

COITUS INTERRUPTUS: My tukayo, Jesse Farrales of Chicago, AKA, “Mr. Debonair,” who is also a fellow member of the DOMs Club, sent me this little story.

Southwest Airlines.

I think it’s a free ad for

Here goes:

A mother and her young son were flying Southwest Airlines from Chicago to Seattle

The little boy, who had been looking out the window, turned to his mother and asked, “If big dogs have baby dogs and big cats have baby cats, why don’t big planes have baby planes? The mother, who couldn’t think of an answer, told her son to ask the flight attendant.

So, the boy went down the aisle and asked the flight attendant, “If big dogs have baby dogs and big cats have baby cats, why don’t big planes have baby planes.

The busy flight attendant smiled and said, ‘Did your mother tell you to ask me that?’

The boy, “Yes, she did.”

“Well then, you go and tell your mother,” said the flight attendant, “that there are no baby planes because Southwest always pulls out on time. Have your mother explain that to you . . .

BTW, y'all have a Happy Easter. JJ
