

ONE-NIGHT STAND, a Poem by Ilving Tabios-Zamora - MabuhayRadio

Written by Ilving Tabios-Zamora
Tuesday, 13 July 2010 14:30 -

ONE-NIGHT STAND

Ilving Tabios-Zamora

We chanced upon each other by the beach
Like fireflies marooned by the breeze.
In the moonlight you cooed me your songs
In the sand I wrote you my poems.

Soon we pirouetted to the rhythm of the sea
Like butterflies frolicking on their dog-day.
Then we took turns mooning the moon
And flaunted many, many a deep moan.

The stars can only gnash their teeth
As the surfs lapped our clenching feet.
Even the full moon suddenly appeared to be half
When it turned around in a huff.

The day after, I returned.
Gone were my poems.
Not even an echo of your songs.
But still there were the moaning imprints

ONE-NIGHT STAND, a Poem by Ilving Tabios-Zamora - MabuhayRadio

Written by Ilving Tabios-Zamora
Tuesday, 13 July 2010 14:30 -

Of our naked bodies writhing in the sand!

Golly, what was your name? Will I ever kiss you again?

Joomla SEO powered by JoomSEF