

It could have been true that UST and UP, FEU were the best medical schools in the, Philippines before since few schools offered medical courses in the past. Wether we like it or not, a lot of medical schools outside manila are also doing excellent job. Infact, they are taking now the place of those pionered schools in manila when it comes to topping the board examination. SLU baguio has been consistent of producing top notchers in any board exams hence, that school is now regarded as one of the best university in our country. The achievement of this school is far ahead than those old universities found and manila. Our basis in determining the best schools should be according to records not just on our opinion. thanks.
