Facebook Bans Again Bobby M. Reyes From Posting Trump Satires and Articles of Wit and Humor

As posted in the Facebook Help Center, after Facebook banned me from posting in any and all site(s) -- even those that I do manage as its Creator and Administrator.

The ban ends on July 31, 2019.

I posted: QUOTE. IMHO you have to leave it to the Administrators and Moderators of Facebook Groups whether to allow my submissions to be posted or not at their site. Your decision to ban me is censorship and a violation of my First-Amendment rights, especially my Freedom of the Press, since I am a trained professional journalist.

Thank you for your reconsideration. UNQUOTE.

The ban now extends to the more-than 30 Facebook Groups that I EVEN CREATED AND FOUNDED. I cannot even post any comment in the

Facebook

Groups that I administer.

Perhaps the Press Office of The White House has pressured the Facebook into banning my postings, supposedly for violating community standards. If true, it will just make me a more-popular satirist and writer of wit-and-humor articles, especially those that mock Mr. Moronski and his ilk.

BTW the White House Press Office removed my accreditation as a journalist effective April 17, 2017. I obtained my White House press accreditation during the George W. Bush Administration, which accreditation was honored and continued by the Obama Administration. The Obama First Family even sent me a Christmas card every December from 2012 to 2016. Perhaps, my Facebook Friends can help me in protesting this ban by sharing this thread in their respective Timelines. Thank you.

I believe that this was the posting that made the Facebook ban me again from posting in any site (except my Timeline):

The Hispanic-Latino communities, including Asian Latinos and Hispano-Filipino pundits, call now Mr. Trump with this term of endearment (sic), "El Presidente de Pollo Más Loco." Or in English, "The Craziest Chicken President."

Now, the GOP wants to turn "chicken sh_t" into "chicken salad."

And Republicans, Talibangelicals and White Supremacists say that it is the best "ensalada" they have tasted.
